September 2011

We support policies that ~~only~~ require schools serving mostly urban areas to be built inside the urban areas. This is better for our children, our environment, and provides many long-term cost savings.

There should be no exceptions or grandfathering for urban districts who purchased rural land over the last 15 years hoping to subvert these policies. The county has been clear on its preference for schools in cities rather than sprawling out to the country. Districts such as Enumclaw have already been told "no" when attempting to build schools outside the city. Enumclaw successfully built a middle school inside its city limits. Other districts can do the same. Allowing the exceptions will set a precedent that may never be undone.
